ACCESS CONTROL FOR SMALL AND MEDIUM BUSINESSES

Security to protect your buildings, assets and people

Securing businesses and the people who work there is an important task. Access control serves as more than just a physical validation system for entries and exits, it allows you to protect your business assets, record scheduled entries and integrate identifications systems, all within the system.

Whether you are managing the security for a big office building, multiple business locations or you are responsible for just your unit in the facility- you deserve a security system that is easy to manage, cost effective and reliable.

Millennium allows you to increase security with physical access control, video surveillance and multiple other integrations without worrying about an increase in cost or lower quality of service.

ACCESS CONTROL FOR GOVERNMENT FACILITIES

Securing municipalities with flexible, reliable and scalable access control

From city hall to the police department, all government buildings have two things in common: threats are high and the stakes are higher. Even the smallest security breach can have lasting effects on a local government's reputation and the community it serves. While government buildings need to remain open to serve constituents, public access can threaten security.

Access control provides a much needed layer of security to protect workers and the public from ever present threats. In cases of occasional security breaches, access control provides the ability to immediately lockdown facilities to protect precious lives and prevent further loss.

Millennium's suite of access control solutions is designed to comply with all safety regulations and allows you to provide reliable security with physical access control and video surveillance.

PROTECTION FOR FIRE STATIONS AND OFFICERS

ACCESS CONTROL FOR K-12 SCHOOLS

Providing a secure learning environment with scalable access control

Nowhere in our history is the security of schools more important. It is the duty of every institution to provide a safe environment for the students, faculty and staff. Government regulations on student and personnel entry are worthwhile, but adequate security is only achievable when extensive security measures are put in place, such as reliable access control systems along with security cameras and emergency notifications systems.

Access control allows for the control of entry and exit, provides the ability to track movements, and adds an extra layer of security. In cases of security breaches, access control provides the ability to immediately lockdown facilities to protect precious lives and prevent further loss.

Millennium's suite of access control solutions is designed to comply with all safety regulations and allows you to provide reliable security with physical access control and video surveillance.

ACCESS CONTROL FOR WORSHIP CENTERS

Provide a worry-less worship experience while increasing security for members

As a worship center manager or administrator, your job means you have to worry about the security issues that no-one else has to think about. Promoting a welcoming worship atmosphere while ensuring top-notch security for sanctuaries, clergy offices, living spaces and attached event centers such as religious-based childcare facilities is an important function of your job.

People visit worship centers for comfort, safety, and a sense of belonging. Under no circumstances do they expect to feel unsafe or to have their security jeopardized when coming for a prayer or mass. That's why it is important that your security plan combines effectiveness in preventing and containing threats, without changing the experience for your members.

Millennium allows you to increase security with physical access control and video surveillance without worrying about an increase in cost or lower quality of service.
